Continuation of Substance of Interview including description of the general nature of what was discussed: The claims as originally filed could be interpreted from an alternate viewpoint that the examiner believed was different than the intended invention. Based on the examiner's search and discussions with primary examiners in the related art, the claims would be allowable if amended to overcome the alternate viewpoint as well as more clearly define the key limitations of the invention. Specifically, the amendments discussed with the applicant's representative involved clarifying the expected sequence number and the relationship of the sequence number and expected sequence number to both the sending side and the receiving side, and the functionality involving the sequence number and expected sequence number in determining whether data is accepted on the receiving end. An agreement was reached on sufficient amendment to make the claims allowable, and an examiner's amendment will be used to make the amendment.
